1. INTRODUCTION

Food Corporation of India (FCI) is one of the premier organizations of the Government of India set-up under the Food Corporations Act, 1964 in order to fulfill the following objectives of the Food Policy:

- Effective price support operations for safeguarding the interests of the farmers.
- Distribution of food grains throughout the country for public distribution system and other Government of India schemes and
- Maintaining a satisfactory level of operational and buffer stocks of food grains to ensure National Food Security.

FCI primarily deals with procurement of food grains, specially wheat, paddy, raw rice and boiled rice for the Central Pool independently or in association with the State Governments and their agencies. Procurement of wheat and paddy is made under Price Support Scheme whereas rice is procured under levy as per levy orders issued by the State Governments. Depending on the deficit or surpluses in the stocks held and requirements, import/export of food grains is also undertaken from time to time by FCI. In addition to this, FCI undertakes movement of levy sugar to Jammu & Kashmir, North-Eastern states, Lakshadweep and Andaman & Nicobar Islands. However, this is a very minor quantity vis-a-vis the movement of food grains.

The food grains thus procured or imported/exported (about 250 lakh MTs wheat and 300 lakh MTs rice in a year) is moved by rail and road throughout the country and kept in about 2000 warehouses for onward issue to State Governments for Public Distribution and Poverty Alleviation/ Employment Generation/Developmental Schemes and Central Government departments like Army and Paramilitary organizations for their needs. Most of the movement of food grains is by rail.
2. FCI ORGANIZATION STRUCTURE

FCI organization hierarchy is as follows. There are 5 Zonal offices, 24 regional offices and approximately 170 district offices and about 2000 Depots across the country.

![Organization Structure Diagram]

3. PROCESS DESCRIPTION

Procurement of food grains is one of the three major functions of FCI.

- Procurement of Food Grains is mainly done in states such as Punjab, Haryana, Andhra Pradesh, MP, UP & Chhattisgarh. Punjab, Haryana and MP are the major wheat surplus states and Punjab, Andhra Pradesh, Chhattisgarh and Haryana are the major rice surplus states.
- Procurement is done in two ways:
  - From Farmers directly
  - Through Agents (Arhtias) in the mandies.
- Foodgrains are procured at the minimum support price (MSP) declared by the Government of India at the start of each of Marketing season.

4. PROCESS OF STORAGE OF FOODGRAIN

There are three types of storage forms:
- Covered godowns
• Silos
• Covered And Plinth (CAP)-Stocks kept on plinth and covered with polythene covers.

Rice is always stored in a covered godown, whereas wheat is stored in any of the three storage forms.

5. MOVEMENT OF FOODGRAINS

Food Grains are moved from the surplus regions viz Punjab, Haryana, Andhra Pradesh, MP, Chhattisgarh etc to the consuming/deficit regions by rail or by trucks.

FCI depends heavily on the railways for movement of foodgrains. The Movement Division at FCI, with the help of railways, works out a detailed monthly movement plan so as to help the railways in allotting the required number of rakes and its availability schedule for the smooth movement of the food grains.

As the movement involved, especially by rail, is more there is a substantial scope to reduce the cost by using techniques like Linear Programming, Goal Programming etc. As of now FCI is managing the entire exercise of movement by a manual process with the vast practical knowledge acquired by the planners over the years. Linear Programming is also in limited use.

It may be noted that not all the loading rail heads and recipient rail heads are fully equipped with necessary facilities to handle full rakes. At times, the demands of nearby rail heads are combined so that a full rake is operated thus reducing the operational cost and time. Similarly, whenever the demand of a railhead is less than a full rake, then also demands of nearby railheads are combined so that instead of operating two half rakes, as far as possible, a full rake is operated. On certain occasions, the FCI also operates some dedicated movement to meet the demand of army or any other emergency needs. In that case, it may get a preferential treatment over others.

6. PURPOSE OF THE STUDY

The purpose of this study is to assess the existing process and to suggest an improved design to revamp FCI’s supply-chain. The improvements/solution recommended must be demonstrated to be both economically viable operationally feasible.

7. SCOPE OF THE STUDY

7.1 To document the pattern of foodgrains flows of the FCI in 2010-11 including:

a) Origins and destinations as well as quantities (actual).
b) What was the gap between planned and actual movement? (specifically with reference to – (i) Punjab, A.P., Chhattisgarh as surplus states and (ii) NE, West Bengal, Bihar, Jharkhand, Karnataka as receiving states).

c) Storage capacity at various locations, and end of the month stock variations.

d) Mode of transportation, whether rail or road and quantities moved.

e) Railway infrastructure available at loading and unloading points to undertake movement.

7.2 Performance of the Railway in movement of foodgrains covering the following areas:

a) Why were Railways not able to provide rakes to FCI as per plan?

b) Why did Railways not honour monthly plans? What impact did it have on utilization of storage capacity in godown, handling of foodgrains, and cost of handling?

c) What were the reasons for bunching of rakes at receiving godowns? Was it possible to prevent bunching? How could this have been prevented?

d) Is there any linkage between Railways providing rakes and speed of unloading at railhead?

e) Is it possible for Railways to take responsibility for Transit Loss through 100% weighment at loading and unloading stations?

f) Study cases in which rakes had to be rebooked and high demurrage incurred. What were the reasons for this?

g) What is impact of fertilizer & cement movement on movement of foodgrains; particularly with respect to Ex. A.P and ex Chhattisgarh.

h) Study impact of agitations on Railways, for example, the Gujjar agitation, in 2010-11.

i) What are half rake placement stations? What was utilization of godowns at half rake points in 2010-11? What plan was given by FCI for these stations? What was the offtake at these godowns and how did FCI meet the demand?
j) How can the rake availability be increased at the dispatching regions of Punjab, Haryana, Andhra Pradesh and Chattisgarh.

k) Is free time allowed by railways of 9 hours sufficient in the manual system of loading/unloading?

l) Is there a need of synchronization between Railways working hours and FCI’s working hours?

m) How can the bunching/detention/rebooking be avoided at the destination ends.

n) How have poor infrastructural facilities at the goods shed affected loading/unloading operations?

o) Can Railways stop the placement of rakes on Sunday/Holidays. If not, then how FCI can save demurrage on this account.

p) Is there a scope to introduce mechanization in the operations of loading/unloading, so as to ensure early release of rakes?

q) Railways easily provide rakes on those routes on which it can get backward traffic (to Maharashtra, Gujarat from North). How can Railways be persuaded to supply rakes at FCI designated receiving ends only? (particularly NE)

r) Why Railways fail to honour the weekly priorities given by FCI for loading of the rakes? What is the impact on the non-observance of weekly priorities by the Railways?

7.3 FCI’s own material handling, weighment, sampling, and testing infrastructure.

7.4 Systems of Foodgrain Movement Planning and Monitoring employed by FCI, and its effectiveness, covering specifically:

    a) While preparing the estimated movement plan, do the Regional Offices of FCI prepare depot-wise inflow/outflow statements? The inflow/outflow statements of some depots in states mentioned in para 8.1 (b) may be studied carefully and variations in the same may be studied.

    b) What is the pattern of offtake from FCI’s godowns (study pattern in some selected godowns)? Is the offtake equal in every week?

    c) Study the correctness of IRRS and offtake data in some depots. How can the IRRS stock and offtake data be used for planning of grain flow?
d) Study godowns inflow/outflow and whether the estimate of procurement/offtake has come true. What can be done to improve these estimates?

e) Time taken to load and unload rakes at godowns having contract labour/DPS/Departmental labour/CWC godowns. What is the reason for long time taken?

f) Study trend of detention at railheads/siding godowns with Departmental/DPS/Contract labour.

7.5 To project the flows of foodgrains over a 15 year horizon, taking into account likely changes in production and procurement patterns, deficits in foodgrain requirements in various areas of the country, storage capacities existing and planned at various locations, requirements of the PDS under the Food Security Act, etc.

7.6 While dealing with the points at 1 and 2 above, to make specific and detailed studies in respect of the special requirements of the North Eastern Region.

7.7 To examine the scope for the introduction of modern technologies into FCI’s material handling, covering both intermediate bulk handling as well as full-fledged bulk handling.

7.8 To examine the characteristics of a desirable logistics model for FCI, including planning for an optimal pattern of flows, a desirable and feasible model mix of transportation, and the creation of infrastructure necessary within the FCI. While examining various transportation modes, the feasibility of using coastal shipping should also be studied.

7.9 To arrive at an indicative requirement for railway infrastructure to support the foodgrains movement anticipated.

7.10 To arrive at an indicative list of infrastructure required at specified ports, both to facilitate coastal shipping, as well as likely import and export operations.

7.11 To estimate the capital investment requirement for the proposed logistics regime.

7.12 To examine the scope for engagement of Turn Key Logistics Service Providers by the FCI. If feasible, to specify the scope of activities that can be managed through such agencies, and to design appropriate contracting procedures and documents therefor.

7.13 In the bulk storage and handling projects implemented by Adani the movement to Circuit-I i.e. from Moga Base Depot to Bangalore, Chennai and Coimbatore has been much lower than the movement plan given by FCI. What are the reasons for lower movement on this circuit? Was it due to Railways inability to provide rakes?

7.14 To suggest /recommend improvement in the existing LP Solution used by the corporation. While doing so, the consultant would study the constraints of the railways and the requirements of the FCI and suggest best possible ways to optimize the route plans with a view to achieve efficiency and cost saving on railway freight etc.

7.15 Whether the availability of required variety of foodgrains stocks in the FCI godowns/base depots is as per requirement?

7.16 Whether adequate manpower is available with FCI which affects the receipt and issue of foodgrains?

7.17 Whether non availability of stocks is concentrated in certain pockets of a District/State or is spread all across?

7.18 Whether the non availability of stocks follows a particular pattern i.e. non availability exists during the end of the month or throughout the month or the stocks is non-available during a particular period of a year say during monsoon or during peak seasons of Railways?

7.19 Whether there is alternate mechanism to ensure the availability of foodgrains during natural calamities/force majeure conditions?

7.20 What is the pattern of lifting by the State Govt. during the weeks of a month or during a year and its impact on the supply chain?

7.21 What are the reasons for the particular pattern of lifting during a week/month/year and whether they are justifiable?

7.22 Whether the infrastructure available with the State Govt. is insufficient on which FCI has no control but affects the pattern of lifting?

7.23 Whether the ability of State Govts. to make financial arrangements in time which affects the pattern of lifting?

7.24 Whether the available weighment facilities are adequate for speedy receipt and issue of foodgrains?

7.25 Whether the Information Technology is available at the depots and is being fully utilized for monitoring the receipt and supply of foodgrains and is being utilized for addressing the bottlenecks arising thereof?
7.26 On the implantation of the food security act the requirement of foodgrains across the country will increase and whether the available infrastructure/manpower is adequate to manage the supply chain.
